Lock up your vehicle, remove all items of value and leave nothing visible when you park and walk away. With the weekend coming up, it would be a good time to clean out your vehicle and assess what needs to be in the vehicle for your to do your errands, trips, etc. Good crime prevention practices include assessing and evaluating how your vehicle appears to a potential burglar – you want to avoid your property being seen an easy target. If it means dropping off the purse at home before you hit the gym and only carrying a fanny pack with your gym card and driver license and having that with you in the gym or in the exercise room with you, then so be it! If it means investing in a great lock to stow your purse and other items in the gym locker, that's another solution. Food for thought over the weekend and it'd be a good time to think through your personal crime prevention strategy.
